

Riding the emotional rollercoaster

It's not easy for investors to manage their emotions. They tend to panic and sell just as markets are set to rise, and get excited and buy just as markets are set to decline. Although you can't control market volatility, you can control your emotional responses. Your advisor will keep you focused on your long-term goals so you can resist the temptation to invest impulsively.

S&P 500 Index – Price

Source: Morningstar Direct

For more information, contact your financial advisor or visit mackenzieinvestments.com

Commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses all may be associated with mutual fund investments. Please read the prospectus before investing. Mutual funds are not guaranteed, their values change frequently and past performance may not be repeated.

The content of this document (including facts, views, opinions, recommendations, descriptions of or references to, products or securities) is not to be used or construed as investment advice, as an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy, or an endorsement, recommendation or sponsorship of any entity or security cited. Although we endeavour to ensure its accuracy and completeness, we assume no responsibility for any reliance upon it.

©2020 Morningstar Research Inc. All Rights Reserved. The information contained herein: (1) is proprietary to Morningstar; (2) may not be copied or distributed; and (3) is not warranted to be accurate, complete, or timely. Neither Morningstar nor its content providers are responsible for any damages or losses arising from any use of this information. Past performance is no guarantee of future results.